CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS NUMBER

JOHN JAY CHAPMAN,
an essayist of distinction among America's men of letters, is poet as well. His volumes are numerous, the more recent being Deutschland über Alles, and Greek Genius and Other Essays.

MAJOR-GENERAL W. H. CARTER, U.S.A., is a well-known military authority, and until his retirement in 1915, a member of the General Staff. Since the declaration of war he has been assigned to active duty as the head of the Department of the Lakes at Chicago. The acts of Congress which made the construction of the army what it is today were drafted by him.

SYDNEY BROOKS
is one of the best known English journalists. His contributions to important magazines on both sides of the Atlantic have won him an international reputation.

DEMETRIUS C. BOULGER has paid much attention to the foreign interests of Great Britain and has also closely studied military questions, particularly those bearing upon the French frontiers and the position of Belgium. Among the works he has published are England and Russia in Central Asia, The History of China, and Central Asian Questions.

LOUIS J. A. MERCIER,
a native of France, has had rather extensive educational experience in this country. He was Fellow of Romance Languages at Chicago and Columbia Universities and instructor in French at the University of Wisconsin and Harvard. At the outbreak of the war he returned to France and served for two years and a half as inter-
